For the most memorable part, the ancient coral caves of Shimoni served as a pen in which over 1 million slaves would wait before being shipped to the slave market in Zanzibar, Tanzania & onwards to Yemen between 1860 and 1895. It is believed that the slaves were held here for 2-3 weeks, before being packed in dhows – up to 1000 at a time. As many as 400 died during that voyage and were thrown overboard to be eaten by sharks. You will explore the underground chambers where slaves were held before being transported.
